ENOUGH TO LAST

Two Boys Confess To the Larceny Of $2500 Worth Of Theatre Tickets

Theatre tickets stolen from Park Theatre between January and May last year while the place was closed for repairs, were recovered Thursday night by patrolmen John D. Chapman and Forrest K. Hatch, who arrested Maynard McCartney, 16 and Charles Rich 15. They admitted their guilt to the officers.

On discovery of the theft last year the color of the theatre tickets was changed but with the beginning of the new year the old colors were resumed. Thursday night one of the stolen tickets made its appearance and the doorman promptly notified Manager Dandeneau. The arrest followed.

McCartney, police said, took the officers to his home and revealed a hiding place under the attic floor where eight rolls of tickets were found. A barn on Pleasant street was revealed as another hiding place.

The boys were arraigned before Recorder Otis yesterday. It developed that McCartney had been arrested on two previous occasions. Recorder Otis ordered him committed to the State School for Boys, or to serve 30 days if admission there is denied.

The younger boy, who had "come clean" when the officers investigated was placed on probation and will report monthly to the probation officer Henry H. Payson.

A LEGION WARNING

World War Vets Not To Be Misled By Newly Formed Organizations

A warning to all World War veterans not to be misled into donating money to numerous newly created organizations which solicit funds from ex-soldiers for the alleged purpose of bringing about the immediate payment of the Adjusted Service Certificates has been issued here by National Commander Ray Murphy of American Legion. The warning was prompted by numerous reports to National Headquarters of the Legion here that "bonus organizations" again were springing up like mushrooms all over the country and trying to collect money from veterans.

"Such campaigns are more likely to hurt the veterans' cause than to help it," Commander Murphy said. "There is nothing new about the development of such organizations," says Commander Murphy. "Every time the Adjusted Service Certificate question is presented to the Congress, they spring up all over the country. A common method of procedure among such organizations is to contact veterans in various communities, urge them to obtain signatures to petitions, collect a dollar from each signer, keep twenty-five cents as a fee for themselves and send the remaining seventy-five cents to the organization, presumably for campaign purposes.

"In the short time before this question is considered by the Congress, it is impossible to investigate the integrity of such organizations. While some of them may be quite sincere in their intentions, the tactics employed smack of racketeering at the expense of the veterans. The Congress will not be impressed by such tactics, even if such petitions ever reach the Capitol. I urge all veterans to ignore these requests for donations."

LAND OF CONTRASTS

Commander Reed Gives Local Lions Illuminating Talk On The Philippines

Commander George H. Reed, U.S.N., who is spending the winter in Rockland, former home of his wife, was guest speaker at Thursday's meeting of the Rockland Lions Club in The Thorndike grill, and from him the members gained some highly interesting impressions of the Philippines, where the commander filled one of his assignments.

The speaker took The Courier-Gazette to task for three mistakes which occurred in the brief announcement that he was to be guest speaker. The writer pleads guilty to demoting the officer from commander to lieutenant commander and referring to him as "retired." The latter appears to have been an error of only a few weeks as Commander Reed will retire Feb. 1st, according to a recent announcement. "China" was given as his subject for the simple reason that this was the topic handed to The Courier-Gazette by the entertainment committee. Due apology is tendered for the lapse of naval etiquette.

The speaker's strongly humorous vein, which had found expression in his letter recently republished in this paper, was evidenced several times in his talk Thursday, finding its climax in the original verses which served as his peroration.

Commander Reed told of his pre-conceived notions of the Philippines, and of what he really found in that land of contrasts where locomotion may be furnished by a Rolls Royce or a carabao. One of the most unusual incidents which he told concerned the racket which awoke him from a sound sleep at his hotel. He had seen fish caught in many ways, but had never seen them "scared ashore" before, as was being done in this case.

So drolly and interestingly told was Commander Reed's talk that the members evinced a desire to hear him again on some other subject—possibly China.

It appeared from the report of Dave Davis that Teams 2 and 4, commanded by Captains Frank H. Ingraham and Frank A. Tirrell, respectively, won the recent membership contest, and will sometime dine at the expense of Teams 1 and 3. Six new members were gained through this contest, a repetition of which was recommended by Lion Davis.

Sam Szek told how Christmas offerings from the Lions Club had been distributed among ten needy Junior High School boys. "I did not dream there was so much poverty in this city," said Lion Szek, as he told of his experience.

Two members of the Club were found to be of January birth, one, Marcus Chandler, having made his appearance on this terrestrial sphere on the 13th.

FANTASTICALLY IMPOSSIBLE

Townsend Plan a Band Wagon For Riding Into Office, Says Louis A. Walker

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—The pathetic need of aged people provides a convenient bandwagon upon which adventures may ride into office. Anyone not a besotted sentimentalist knows that the Townsend Plan is fantastically impossible. It has no foundation in the philosophy of politics or in economics.

I go into the homes of old people and I receive letters from those who are hanging on to life in the hope of opulence before undreamed.

Paid professional promoters of minority movements living off the golden stream made up of the pitances of the poor, tantalize the thirsty lips of age with this mirage of wealth. Political opportunists who never before espoused the cause of the disinherited suddenly become their champions, willing to raise hopes which will be blasted in Washington after the champions are safely there.

Economic Security for Age must come, but it is not the simple recipe for National Recovery. It does not touch the real cause of our disturbance. The Townsend Plan in operation would end the Capitalistic Order quickly but it would not replace it with any other. It would tumble it down and with it such little civilization as we have achieved. It would briefly benefit one class, politicians who have no principle, no political program, no comprehension of our present tendencies, no genuine concern for the aged poor or anything else but a consuming passion to enjoy the emoluments of office.

IN BETTER CONDITION

To Meet Whatever Is In Store, Says President Wyman Of Central Maine

Central Maine Power Company developments in 1935 are reviewed in the letter which its stockholders have just received from President Walter S. Wyman. He says, in part: "The savings in earnings due to the financing that has been done this year will amount to $127,482 per year, as compared with the situation before this financing was done. This saving, added to the increased income which the Company has been getting for the last four months makes us feel fairly optimistic about the coming year. Several substantial new customers have been added since July and a very appreciable result has been obtained from our efforts to get new business from our miscellaneous customers.

"The Bath Gas Plant, which has been a source of loss to us for several years, has been discontinued and its customers nearly all transferred to the Electric Department. After charging against earnings about $60,000 of the cost of this change-over, and after reflecting six months of the substantial rate reductions made over the entire territory we believe the Company will end the year showing net earnings about equal to the full dividends on the preferred stock.

"In the early part of 1935, in fact, for most of the time during the first ten months, a good many extraordinary items were thrown into the Company expense account, due to the appraisal, accounting and legal work that was going on in connection with the various consolidations and security issues. It was necessary to register all the bonds issued under the new Federal Securities Act. This

WHAT THE PRISON DOES

Furnishes a Chance To Become a Useful Citizen, Says Warden "Ted" Johnson

The leading editorial in the current issue of the State Prison newspaper, "Vox," is contributed by Warden Johnson, and will be read with interest by many persons on the "outside." It follows:

When one speaks of a prison it seems to create a feeling of horror in most peoples' minds, but let us analyze our prison at Thomaston. It is an institution that was founded in 1824, long before any of us came into being, and unlike some of our other institutions it is still going strong. Unfortunately this condition is a fact; it is going strong, and today it is stronger than at any other time in its history.

This is due perhaps to the trend of the times and the type of young man who is growing up today. He is a person that confronts those in authority with a problem that seems to be getting harder and more difficult to solve each day.

At an age when a few years ago our boys were just getting to the stage of being able to play the many games in school, some of our boys today are being caught up in a life that really makes us wonder what this world of ours is coming to. When you stop to consider that of the 300-odd prisoners in our prison today, the average age is just about 21 years; an age when a boy in a family of moderate circumstances should be either just leaving school or starting his college career. This inmate is very sure to be a boy that has committed several minor crimes or offenses, has probably served time in a Reform School, State School, or County Jail, and finally, not having learned the value of work and play to keep one's mind and body fit, has committed the crime that has landed him here among those hardened cases who seem to delight in trying to educate these new-comers in the fields of crime. Notwithstanding that these same men are in prison and are doing out as boys that are on the inside or close to the big-shots. Envy is in the thoughts of those on the outside and they are easy prey for those who are looking for recruits to that army of soft lives.

Such is the step that starts most of them off, and then comes the short, most of the time, road to prison; they are licked but no matter what excuse they may offer they have licked themselves by not preparing themselves for a real struggle against the pitfalls of the road through this life of ours. So they come to us unprepared even for a life in our scheme of things. But here is a chance for their lives.

Punishment is meted out to our

FARNSWORTH WILL ALLOWED

Together With Two Codicils—Searching Cross Examination By Judge Pattangall

The will and codicils of the late Lucy C. Farnsworth, disposing of an estate estimated at $1,000,000, were allowed yesterday by Judge Melzar T. Crawford, after a hearing which occupied a considerable portion of the day in Knox Probate Court. The remonstrants offered no evidence at the time, but appealed from the courts decision, and the case will be threshed out at the May term of Knox County Superior Court.

In allowing the will Judge Crawford said he had read it carefully and to him it looked like an attempt to glorify the Farnsworth family. The proponents of the will were Cook, Hutchinson, Pierce and Connell of Portland, with Charles T. Smalley as the resident counsel. The remonstrants were represented by former Chief Justice William R. Pattangall, with whom is associated Alan L. Bird.

The examination of the witnesses was conducted by Mr. Connell, while the cross examination was by Judge Pattangall, distinguished counsel still being represented. Court stenographer Cecil Clay of Belfast was the official reporter, and the proponent counsel also brought their own stenographer, Miss Esther Osborne.

Arthur S. Baker, who knew Miss Farnsworth intimately as a former banker and head of the insurance firm of Cochran, Baker & Cross testified as to her soundness of mind and her business ability. Miss Lillian Baker, a witness to the original will, told of her intimate personal and business relations with Miss Farnsworth. Up to two years before Miss Farnsworth's death witness saw her frequently, and "rarely ever got out of her house in less than an hour." The deceased was very talkative and expressed much interest in current happenings. In her opinion Miss Farnsworth's mind was "all right," and remained clear just previous to her death, although she was losing strength.

Mild but relentless was the cross examination by Judge Pattangall. "What was the condition of Miss Farnsworth's house?" he asked. "She kept no help," replied the witness, and things didn't look as neat as though she had." "Wasn't the house actually dirty?" "I didn't see much of it except the living room."

"Wouldn't it surprise you to know that after her death a large quantity of coupons from bonds were found around the house?" "I would think she was careless."

"Would you think she had treated money lightly?" "She was close about saving, but if anybody stole from her she didn't seem to worry about it."

"Did she talk to you about her investments?" "She told me about her investments in Pullman stock and thought they were good."

"If you had known that Pullman stock was at its lowest point would you have called that business acumen?" "Well, all stocks were down at that time."

"Did you know that some of her property was dilapidated and had broken windows?" "Yes, I had her replace the broken windows in the house on Claremont street and suggested that she put shutters on the Broadway house. I also spoke to her about a house on Pleasant street, the foundation of which was bad."

"Would that condition indicate to you that Miss Farnsworth had a business grasp?" "It would indicate that she was careless."

"There were those coupons scattered about the house; didn't she need money?" "She enjoyed hoarding."

"Did Miss Farnsworth contribute to the Community Chest or any other charitable organization?" "The only instance I know was when she bought a membership in the Home For Aged Women, at the time her mother was alive."

"During 20 years you have never known her to contribute to charity, or have connection with any church or society?" "She went once to a dinner at Warrenton about 15 years ago. She used to go to Boston occasionally on business, but had very little company at her own house. Relatives didn't visit her very much."

"Was Miss Farnsworth's time quarry developed or idle?"

"It was idle a long time." Witness told of finding Miss Farnsworth house cold, and of suggesting that she have a fire, but Miss Farnsworth said something was the matter with the heater. Deceased was prompt about paying her taxes, and kept her bills well paid. She had considerable litigation.

Luther L. Smith, who signed the codicil dated Oct. 14, 1922, and who said he had a "speaking acquaintance" with Miss Farnsworth, testified that she was very keen and of sound mind. He had dealings with the deceased while employed at Spear's Shoe Store.

"Did you have any other experience with her besides selling her a pair of shoes 15 years ago?" asked Judge Pattangall.

"Not particularly."

"Then you couldn't testify as to her soundness of mind?" "Not except what others had said about her."

Ralph E. Nutt, who also witnessed this codicil—"a paper which she called a will"—had nothing on which to base his judgment of her soundness of mind except hearsay evidence, he testified.

Walter H. Spear, who conducted a shoe business as one of Miss Farnsworth's tenants for 31 years, spoke of her as "the smoothest woman he had ever done business with."

He went to her home every month to pay the rent, and occasionally took her out riding to her farm. He hadn't seen much of her in the last three years. He witnessed the will and was of the opinion that she was "absolutely of sound mind, and a very smart woman."

"Why did you consider her a smart woman?" asked Judge Pattangall. "Because she had a good knowledge of investments, and didn't take anything but 6 and 8 percent stuff."

"Was that good judgment?" "She thought so."

"Have you any other evidence as to her business acumen except the fact that she sought the highest rate of interest in her investments?" "No."

"Did she take good care of her real estate?" "She did not. She never spent a nickel for the maintenance of the old derelict I occupied. It was smart on her part to have me keep it in repair."

"What about her other property?" "Terrible."

"Hadden't that condition been apparent the past 20 years?" "Yes."

"What was the appearance of her own house?" "Awful."

Francis D. Orne, who signed the second codicil, dated Sept. 7, 1934, said he knew Miss Farnsworth only through business appointments. He became acquainted with her when he was employed as a grocer's clerk in 1928, and had business dealings with her the past five years as an insurance broker. In his opinion she was of sound mind, and he never knew when she was not of sound mind.

Albertina E. Creighton, who signed the codicil of 1934, expressed the opinion that Miss Farnsworth was of sound mind. On cross examination she described her visits to the Farnsworth house and of seeing a hole in the hall floor.

Miss Ruth Peterson, who also signed the codicil of 1934, testified on cross examination that she had not formed an opinion as to the soundness of mind possessed by the deceased.

Uncertainty as to be exact date of Miss Farnsworth's death was expressed but the attorneys were agreed that it was immaterial in this case. It will be remembered that the body was found by the police after suspicion arose that the occupant of the house was not alive. It could not be told with certainty whether she died Oct. 15 or 16.

Judge Pattangall elected not to present evidence at this time, and the case will be aired in full at the May Term of Superior Court.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM
SNOW—A WINTER SKETCH
The blessed morn has come again;
The early gray
Taps at the slumberer's window-pane,
And seems to say,
Break, break from the enchanter's
Away, away!
'Tis winter, yet there is no sound
Along the air
Of winds along their battle-ground;
But gently there
The snow is falling,—all around
How fair, how fair!

ON EASTER ISLAND

Mecca Of Explorers Now Serves As A Chilean National Monument

No longer will explorers and curious hunters have the freedom of Easter Island, lonely land spot in the Pacific Ocean more than two thousand miles off the Chilean coast. The Chilean Government recently declared the island a national monument in order to protect its famous statues.

"Easter Island is the easternmost habitat of the Polynesian race," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society, "yet it is in no other way comparable to other islands of the South Seas except, that it is of volcanic origin."

Deited With Inactive Volcanoes

"Fifty square miles in area, it has no lush forests and no palm-fringed coasts. It is liberally dotted with volcanoes that long ago stopped pouring molten lava over their rims. The lower portion of the island is composed of sheets of lava, which now are in process of disintegration. Walking over these lower areas is extremely tiresome, and in places almost impossible; and riding is a very slow procedure. The surfaces of the mountain sides and hills are generally smooth since they are formed of fine volcanic ash. Both the lowlands and highlands are covered with grass."

"The island got its name from the fact that the first known white man, a Dutch navigator, landed there on Easter day in 1722."

"Lying off the usual shipping routes of the South Pacific, Easter Island has never been a tourist center. A few shipwrecked men have found it a haven and a Chilean Company has used it for cattle raising. Traders touch it; but its chief lure lies in its statues, huge stone monuments whose origin has baffled archeologists and historians since the island's discovery."

"In open fields, in quarries, and along the edge of the sea, these grotesque images are to be found. Some stand as they were placed by the natives; no one knows when. Others have fallen on their sides or backs, while still others now are face downward or buried. While they differ in size; they are similar in shape, representing half-length human figures, with hands meeting in front of the bodies. Once they adorned stone tombs of deceased islanders, but only a few of the tombs remain. There are statues from three to more than thirty feet high but most of them are twelve to twenty feet in length. Some weigh many tons. Visitors wonder how these heavy statues were transported to their positions sometimes miles from quarries."

Many Statues Remain Unfinished

"In one quarry, scores of images may be seen in various stages of completion. In some cases they are completely carved but have not been cut away from their bases. Early visitors to the island found stone tools strewn about the quarry as though workmen stopped suddenly and never returned to complete their work. Why, no one knows. Script-covered wooden panels have been found but they have failed to yield the island's past. The 250 inhabitants, clustered in a village on the western side of the island, have their versions of Easter Island's history but these are often too fantastic to be credible. The natives know cattle raising, their only industry, but the habits of their forbears is unknown to them."

"A story is told by the islanders to throw some light on the desertion of an Easter Island quarry. It is said that an old woman living on the southern corner of the mountain in which the quarry was located, was a cook to the image-makers. She was an outstanding person in the quarry establishment. By supernatural power she moved the statues at her will. While she was away from the quarry, the workmen obtained a fine lobster. They consumed it and saved none for her. They forgot to conceal the remains and when she returned and found she had been left out of the feast, she arose in her wrath and told the images to fall down, thus bringing the work to a standstill."

A SEA WHOPPER

Which Might Well Have Been Entered In Recent Liars' Contest

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—We always read those "large stories" that come from the pen of your Tenant's Harbor correspondent, with a great deal of interest, but have been looking for another that it seems to me should have been told him ere this, by some of those past masters down there.

Here is one that we can't just place but we think it came at the same time as that about the Mother Carey's chickens hatching her eggs on the wing as she sailed about our vessel's wake.

At that time, and for about five months, we were shipmates with a chap from Tenant's Harbor and it may be that he told us the story. This is it:

The ship was sailing along one day and the boy fell overboard. The carpenter was near at hand and wanted to do something for the poor boy, so he fired the hatchet he had in his hands after him and as that didn't do any good he jumped after him. The others wanted to do something and for lack of anything better threw the grindstone after them, as that was the first thing at hand.

Everybody was feeling badly, and when a shark came along shortly afterward they caught him on a hook and after getting him on deck cut him open and behold! chips had set up the grindstone and the boy was sharpening the hatchet to cut his way out.

This is just as it was told to me, Mr. Editor, and I hope that it will set Elmer to thinking. I think this story originated in a Tenant's Harbor vessel.

Cocoa, Florida, Dec. 30.

TAXES! TAXES! TAXES!

Sounds Like A Paraphrase of "Horses But This Is No Joke"

New Federal taxes ushered in with the New Year include:

Taxes on pay rolls of all business employers of eight or more persons. Taxes on dividends paid one corporation by another.

Different rates of taxes on different-size corporation incomes.

Besides these levies new to the Federal tax structure are others new in the rates that went into effect Wednesday. Higher rates apply on the following taxes:

Taxes on gifts of more than $40,000 to one person. Taxes on individual net incomes over $50,000.

Taxes on the capital stock of business corporations.

Taxes on corporation profits in excess of 10 per cent of the declared value of the capital stock.

These are not the only taxes enacted at the last session of Congress. New taxes have already gone into effect on:

Soft coal mined after Dec. 1.

Potatoes (harvested after Dec. 1) sold in excess of quotas after Dec. 1.

Estates of persons who died after Aug. 30, 1935.

Other new taxes that will not go into effect until some time after the first of the year include:

Taxes on incomes of railroad employees after March 1, 1936.

Taxes on employees and employers starting Jan. 1, 1937, for old age benefit payments.

Higher taxes on pay rolls effective Jan. 1, 1937, for contributions to the unemployed.

PROUD OF JACK

Route One Folks Are Giving Their Ace Carrier A Hand

One of the pleasant features of Friday was the arrival of the following note:

We are very proud of our Courier boy Jack Huks as one who has made no errors and will help him in every way we can to keep the good work up. Mrs. F. O. Cormier and Neighbors 17 Crescent street.

The Carrier Department is human enough to be happy over these kind words, and we take personal pride in these fine boys. A word of appreciation is most encouraging to them. Their aim is to have every paper properly delivered on the day of issue. That is their job and they accept the responsibility with enthusiasm. The telephone numbers are published in order to insure delivery and prevent an error being charged in case of mistake.

The object of this whole business is to have every subscriber perfectly served and the new honor system is doing the job. No error will be charged unless delivery fails. Any subscriber failing to reach his carrier may call 1232-R and the message will be relayed to the boy or one of his buddies so that, if possible, delivery be made. The first month all nine routes are errorless, something will be done about it that will make nine boys smile—and that's a promise.

THE INVISIBLE GUEST

"Today there is an invisible guest who sits at the table of every family in this country. He is the invisible tax eater that collects the hidden taxes. When the housewife purchases three pork chops, the butcher weighs them out but only wraps up two. The third he gives to this invisible guest."

The foregoing paragraph is taken from a recent speech delivered before the American Bankers Association, meeting in New Orleans, by Lewis H. Brown, president of the Johns-Manville Corp., large manufacturer of building materials.

Just excerpts from his speech, pointing need for reducing taxes, are:

"In 1934 the national income was approximately 48 billions of dollars and the total cost of all government—local, state and national—is estimated by the National Industrial Conference Board as being 15 1/2 billions of dollars. Today the total cost of government is equal to one-third of the national income."

"Some people think that all we need is a new mayor, or a new governor, or a new Congress. But what we really need is an aroused public opinion demanding that the cost of government must be reduced."

those same boys to become useful citizens. We will not say useful citizens again, for we feel that the majority of them were never useful, of course there are exceptions to this rule, but those exceptions usually commit crimes that are unusual and their cause are totally different from the regular crime list. But to resume we feel that the chance offered to these boys is one of the finest that can be extended to any boy either inside these prison walls. A boy can learn a useful and paying trade here even better than he can outside, as he is devoting all his thought and energy to the task of learning this trade, and aside from that, his leisure time can be utilized in study if he so desires. Of course the fact must be taken into consideration that he must himself want to learn, because if he does not, and continues to think and act the same as he did on the outside he will accomplish nothing and will remain a useless member of society when he leaves the Prison. We strive to overcome these thoughts and start him in the right direction, as to the company he seeks out and the attitude that he develops toward his work.

Now we consider the fact that a boy may learn to become an expert in the following trades: Auto repair work, machinist work, auto painting, and Body repair work—he may also have a chance to become a stationary engineer. Also a complete course in Plumbing, Steam Fitting, and Electric wiring etc. Then in our wood working plant he may become an expert Cabinet maker as we make a complete line of Cabinets, Desks, and Office Equipment that is striking in design and workmanship. Then he has the choice of several other trades, one, that you who read this may think has gone by, but still is very much in vogue, and that is the trade of harness making.

We make the finest hand sewn harness in the Country right here in the Maine State Prison, and yet another paying trade he might learn is the Tailoring trade, under the tutelage of a first class tailor. Our boys are turning out such work as uniforms for Game Wardens, Sea and shore Fisheries, Toll Bridge Tenders, Institution Guards and Attendants. Janitors uniforms for our State Capitol Building, and all of the clothes that are used in our prison and all of the clothes that are made for the State Welfare division of our State.

Not to stop here he may become a sheet metal worker in our tin shop; or a blacksmith in our smith shop, also it may interest you to know that he can learn the trade of building Mattresses and one of our most interesting jobs in the reconstruction of old furniture. We take in these antique pieces and rebuild and upholster them and turn them out in first class shape, also if desired we can duplicate these pieces. A boy may also learn the printers trade as practically all of our own printing and a great deal of that at the Capitol is done here in the Prison. Again he may have in mind the thought that he would like to become a baker. Such a chance is given the boy that wants it. Our bake shop is equipped, for; and does turn out, all of the bread, pies and other pastries that is used in the Institution. To continue on, he may become a first class Chef in our kitchen department, incidentally one of the busiest places in the Prison.

Such are some of the things a boy can do if he so makes up his mind. He need not go out into society again unprepared to battle for a living, but may go out prepared to take his place in almost any walk of life and make an honest living. With these chances placed before him and the clean way he can live while here, with all the major sports—such as baseball, football, etc at his disposal, he can, if he so desires leave here a man reformed and built up to a perfection, both mentally and physically, that will stand on a par with those of any young man outside. It is entirely up to the boy himself. We are always striving to help him gain that something that he either did not have, or had lost when he came here. I refer to that true spirit of manhood, the will and ambition to live an upright and honest life.

Such is the thought behind our lives in this Institution to build up to our level those who are unfortunate enough to fall by the wayside and lose their grip on the good things of life. When they leave here we trust and pray that they have seen the light that will carry them on as useful and law abiding citizens.

ROCKLAND WON BOTH

Crosby High Suffered Double Defeat Last Night On the Home Court

In an extremely fast and rough basketball game played in the Belfast gymnasium last night Rockland High won over the clever Belfast team 30-25. The game was so fast and rough that the referee was forced to put five of the Belfast men and three of the Rockland men out on fouls.

The Orange and Black quintet started off with a bang in the first few minutes of the game by scoring three baskets to lead 6-0, mainly through the good work of Lord. However Belfast found itself and the score at the end of the first quarter found Rockland leading 10-9.

In the second quarter the stellar work of Jackson, clever Belfast forward, kept the Belfast team in the running and Murgita, Rockland forward, kept Rockland in the run. The half ended with Belfast leading 18-17.

Evidently the Rockland team must have been given the fireworks by their coach between halves for they did a wonderful job in holding the Belfast boys scoreless while making 11 points themselves. The end of the third quarter found Rockland leading 28-18.

The fourth quarter found the Belfast boys trying hard to overcome the lead but Rockland protected it, besides scoring two more points to end the game Rockland 30-Belfast 25.

A brilliant Rockland second team completely outclassed the Belfast seconds by rolling up a 41-5 score. The feature of the game was the wonderful defensive work of the Rockland team. Quite remarkable was the fact that Rockland held the Belfast boys scoreless in the second half.

ACROSS THE CONTINENT

"Charlie" Lawry Tells Of Interesting Things He Has Seen Out In "Frisco"

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Making good on a promise to Rockland friends, here is an account of my trip west. Leaving home Dec. 10, we traveled in company with Miss Helen York as far as Brunswick. Journeying on to Boston we there had a short wait, after which we set out for Chicago and in that city met Mrs. Ella Grimes who was enroute to Pasadena for the remainder of the winter. We entrained for our final goal, San Francisco, and remained in our car which made the trip direct to Oakland.

The ride on the Santa Fe Railroad was very comfortable with air-conditioned trains and food service over 2500 miles. All the book stands and restaurants, as well as the diners, are controlled by the Fred Harvey chain system. As we entered San Francisco, we were greeted by all the hills imaginable, and when I say hills I don't mean Kiln or Sherers, but hills so steep that even the electric cars go around them.

On California street where we are located, and on O'Farrell street, cable cars (electric) run—as one goes down, the other ascends. The sidewalks are so steep that steps are put in the cement so one can get a toe hold. There are cross roads that necessitate cars stopping on hills, and it is a question of making the upgrades, even in second. We also go down in second gear.

A large palm tree is to be seen at the rear of our apartment, and the lawns across the way are green. Our neighbor moved his the other day in his shirt sleeves. The Golden Gate Park, where everything is made by man, is a sight worth seeing. The artificial ponds have ducks and only colored swans I ever saw, also a large waterfall. Here also is found a large conservatory where every kind of flower appears. In February the rhododendrons will be in bloom, and I am told they are a beautiful sight. They range from one to 20 feet in height.

The population of the city is nearly 1,000,000. Policemen number 1,000, and the buildings are so tall that one wonders how they stay. The telephone building is over 30 stories high and many of the apartment houses are very lofty. Imagine coming from a city of 8,000 population and driving around through Christmas shoppers out a million strong. Pedestrians here have about the same chance as they do in Rockland with the traffic lights. A wrong guess and a person writes his own obituary.

I found the people here quite like those in Vermont. The visitor is the first to be considered, and if anything remains undone in an effort to make him feel at home I do not know what it is. We saw many Christmas decorations, different from those at home, but no street here, or on the way, was like Main street in Rockland. A large lawn here was decorated with a Christmas tree during the holiday; Santa Claus was present with his sleigh and reindeer; there was snow on the ground, and presents including even candy cones, on a brilliantly lighted tree. In Chinatown, lanterns were strung across the streets and lights arched across them.

This is one of the show places of the city. The two bridges under construction cost over $125,000,000 and are more than eight miles long. That amount of money used to be quite a sum before the days of the triple C's. Alcatraz, where Al Capone is visiting, can be seen extending out into the ocean. I have not had a chance to call on Al yet.

Palo Alto and the grounds of Stanford University was the destination of a motor trip taken recently. Here we saw over 900 acres of land and many beautiful buildings. The chapel contains several Biblical pictures, and one could spend hours here and yet wish to remain. The home of ex-President Hoover was on our route also, but we could not get very near the house with the car, nor did we see Mr. Hoover. Our homeward journey was by way of Redwood City and the large dairy farm called Millbrae, the property of Ogden L. Mills estate. Mr. Mills has

Thousands of persons have I seen on the street and in the stores, but none whom I know. The meat markets here sell meat and vegetables as groceries. One goes to a grocer with a basket, gets what he wants and pays the cashier on the way out. There are no A. & P., or First National stores here. That seemed strange to me as I thought the "red fronts" went from coast to coast, as advertised. Several drug stores sell drugs.

With 100 churches in the city worship of any nature is possible. Banning hours are from 9 to 4, and on Saturdays, 9 to 2. The city is full of street cars and one can ride several miles for a nickel. The cable cars are similar to the old open cars we have, but the conductor, as well as the motorman, operates them.

One seldom hears of the movie stars here although fine theatres abound. The only municipal-owned electric car line in the United States, which is on a paying basis is in this city. I read with regret of the passing of the Bangor-Boston boat—another watermark removed by the times. Buses and trucks have made the change inevitable. Food prices are about the same as the Penobscot Bay region, but a 3 percent sales tax on everything except uncooked food is a nuisance, to say the least. One goes into a store to make a purchase and the clerk says, "Have you a penny, or have you two pennies?" I have a special pocket reinforced for pennies and, with a bank handy, I am able to keep enough for sales taxes.

Everything remains open on Sunday including the sale of wines and liquors. The water here is different in taste from Mirror Lake and one drinks very little of it. Gasoline is priced 8 1/2 cents a gallon with a four-cent tax. There are no Tydol, Gulf of Colonial stations here, Richmond and Shell being the only counterparts of those in Maine. I have seen a few orange trees full of fruit, some citrus and red pepper trees, olive trees and grape vines though these are out of season now. The temperature ranges around 60 during the day, but nights and mornings are cool and an overcoat is needed.

For the first time in the 14 days we have lived here, we had rain last Saturday. Snow seldom falls but it can be seen on the mountains in the distance. Parking here is much the same as in any city. Sometimes they even park cars on garage roofs. Traffic lights are of the "stop and go" revolving type, with bells,—one to get ready and two to go. The children roller skate on the sidewalks and streets and one has to watch them every minute.

Across the 3,772 train miles I send best regards to all and wishes for a happy New Year.

CHURCHES

SERMONETTE

God's Purpose.—V.
 Strange and dramatic as Dickens' Scrooge.

As the men rent by Cornelius, as directed by God's angel, neared Joppa, Peter went up on the housetop to pray. It was about noon as we reckon time. He was very hungry and would have eaten, but while they prepared the meal, he fell into a trance. In this strange state he saw heaven opened, and a certain container like a great sheet, tied by its four corners, let down to the earth, in it all manner of four-footed beasts, tame and wild, and creeping things and fowls of the air. And a voice spoke to him, "Rise, Peter; kill and eat;" but Peter said, "Not so, Lord, for I have never eaten anything that is common or unclean. Again the voice, "that God hath cleansed that call not thou common." Three times was this done, and the sheet-like container was drawn up to heaven.

Peter, left alone, doubted in himself what this vision just seen should mean. As he pondered it, behold the men sent by Cornelius stood before the gate of Simon the tanners house and called for Peter; but he still pondered the dream. The Spirit said, "Behold, three men seek thee; go down and go with them, doubting nothing, for I have sent them."

Peter went down to the men and said, "Behold I am he whom ye seek; what is the cause wherefore ye are come?" And the three men told him.

WINIFRED LAWRY SIMMONS

Christmas Day brought to Mrs. Winifred Lawry Simmons the gift of new life, the life eternal, in which there shall be no more pain, nor shadow of turning.

Born Sept. 21, 1870, daughter of the late Edwin H. and Margaret (Spear) Lawry, and having always lived in Rockland, her life was associated with the community's religious and educational activities. She graduated from Rockland High School in 1889, and Abbot Academy in 1892. Her brilliant mind found expression in the work of the Shakespeare and Methuen Clubs; also as a member of the school board. Uniting with the First Baptist Church early in life, Mrs. Simmons was for many years active in the work of the church particularly the Missionary Society of which she was president. Always a Bible student, the clarity of her interpretations was invaluable as a member of the leeper Bible Study Club.

For the past five years ill health necessitated confinement to her home on Masonic street. A daughter Miss Margaret Lawry Simmons, survives. Private funeral services were held at the home Saturday afternoon, Rev. J. Charles MacDonald officiating. The bearers were Henry M. deRoche, Charles E. Merritt, L. E. Blackington and Charles H. Morey. Interment was in Achorn cemetery.

TO TAKE MYSTERY OUT OF BANKING

By ROBERT V. FLEMING,
 President American Bankers Association

The American Bankers Association has cooperated wherever it could properly do so in every measure for national recovery. It has offered constructive recommendations for such changes in banking laws as we recognized were necessary, and we now have a better law under which to operate. The Banking Act of 1935 affords us opportunities for broader service and, at the same time, retains the fundamentals which we believe are so vital to our national welfare and which have played a large part in bringing our country, in a comparatively short space of time, to the position of the greatest industrial nation on the earth.

The Public and Banking
 It is necessary that the public have a thorough understanding of the functions of banks, what they can do and what they cannot do, for it must be recognized that to many people the business of banking is still somewhat of a mystery.

We should frankly explain these functions to the public, acquaint them with the laws under which we operate and emphasize the vital part which banks play in the economic life of the Nation. Therefore, in order that there may be the fullest cooperation and understanding between the banks and the people of the country, it will also be one of our objectives to take the mystery out of banking wherever it exists.

Banking Conferences
 A series of Regional Conferences on Banking Service will be held in strategic sections of the country, embracing all types of banking. The new banking laws and the regulations issued thereunder will be carefully analyzed so that our bankers will have a thorough understanding of the broadened services now made possible.

The question of public relations and how we can best serve the people of our communities will be another topic of discussion. Clinics or forums on specific questions of interest to bankers and the problems confronting them in their particular localities will also be included.

Traveling Around America

THIS handsome black boy and his long eared friend are on their way to market—a typical pair one is apt to meet on the highways and even on the main streets in Colombia. This country, which is the gateway to South America is a fascinating mixture of Spanish and Indian, white and black, of epic and modern buildings and old walls and fortresses which still carry imprints of the numerous attacks inspired by the wealth of the country's rich mines which during the sixteenth century, were a constant challenge to the rest of the world.

Colombia, most northerly of the West Coast republics, visited weekly by cruises from New York to Peru and Chile, is one of the richest of all the southern republics. In her forests is valuable timber. Under the soil are hidden oil fields which have scarcely been tapped. In her mountains are stored unlimited treasures in metals and precious stones—gold, silver, platinum and emeralds. Colombia leads all other countries in the production of platinum and holds the world's greatest supply of emeralds—discovered in this region include a perfect six-sided crystal weighing more than eight ounces. Some of the mines were so difficult of access they soon were covered

A COLOMBIAN PAIR over by jungles and lost to the world for more than a century.

The ceremony, which was read by Rev. Corwin H. Oids, was performed before a gaily decorated Christmas tree, with Mr. MacLaughlin's seven children and a number of other guests present.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Susie Lamb, and the groom by Eugene Lamb. After the ceremony was completed, refreshments consisting of ice cream and wedding cake were served, and then the company was surprised by a Christmas program presented in a very efficient manner by the children, featuring a Santa Claus playlet, songs, recitations, and Christmas Carols.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lamb, with daughters Mary and Barbara, Mrs. Cora Hall, Miss Marion Brazier, Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Spear and two sons, from Thomaston, Charles Heath, brother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Heath and son, Miss Bernice Field, and Mrs. Will Sayward, all of Union.

CADILLAC MOUNTAIN THOUGHTS

[For The Courier-Gazette]
The season of the withered leaf is fleet! The maker bears it softly to its grave And chants a dirge of promise, that men crave.
When tape are blown, to muffled drums' slow beat,
Earth never waits, all things that live, retreat.
Begin, as the exacting planets pave Eternal courses in the skies, that gave The unsolved journeyings, the years repeat.

How small the vision of the hearts that hope!
It's self-conceit that fills us with its crowd.
Our world, from one small mountain, seems the scope
Of earth's immensity. Is there a need In this great sphere for each small mind
To grope life within a seed?
For miracles—

Realm of Music

By Gladys St. Clair Morgan

Dec. 8, seventy years ago Jean Julius Christian Sibelius was born in Tavastehus, a small town in Central Finland. Before the great Nurmi was born, while Finland was yet a grand duchy belonging to the Russian Empire, before American paper mills began to import Finnish wood-pulp, before the Finns had enacted, regretted and repealed their prohibition law, before the wads which Finland pays to us with unique regularity were incurred or even thought of, before any dreamer had visualized the enormous cultural and political potentialities of a free and independent Finland, Jean Sibelius was known throughout the civilized world as a composer from the Far North singing a new note of arresting force and originality, so Harry Rogers Pratt tells us in a recent issue of the New York Times Magazine.

"Valse Triste" and "Finlandia" had been heard and applauded in every concert hall and cafe from Shanghai to London and drenched out on humble phonographs from Alaska to Cape Horn, and his first three symphonies were sending critics to the artists to have the wax of the 19th century Romanticism removed from their ears that they might hear once more the clear, cool language of pure music.

As early as the 90's Sibelius was the unofficial and sole ambassador from Finland in every capital on the globe, the man who had done more to make his country known than all the rest of the population put together. Is it any wonder that his fellow-citizens for more than 40 years have called him the "uncrowned king of Finland," and is it any wonder that early in his career the Finnish Diet voted him a pension for life on condition that he devote all his time to composition?

One cannot conveniently classify the works of Sibelius. He has set to music many of the songs of the "Kalevala," Finland's great epic poem. He has written innumerable pieces for the piano and violin, as well as symphonic poems, concertos and the incidental music to several plays. In the latter field his most successful achievement was the musical illustration for "The Tempest," first performed in 1926 in the Royal Theatre of Copenhagen. But the greatness of Sibelius is revealed in the symphonies.

On his 70th birthday homage was paid him in all corners of the earth. There were concerts devoting entire programs to his works, radio broadcasts which brought Finland and America together. In recognition of the radio audience vote resulting in Sibelius receiving more votes than any dead or other living composer, the New York Philharmonic Orchestra presented a special program on his birthday.

In his native land on the afternoon of his birthday, as on every birthday of the composer for many years past the people of Helsingfors gathered to pay homage. The Helsingfors Symphony Orchestra which has always had the honor of giving the "first performance" of a new work, was led by Sibelius himself. He was in the city for the day, regretfully leaving his villa in the country where he lives the year round. He bowed and accepted the cheers in a half deprecatory manner as he had done so many times before. He was glad when the celebration was over, for he dislikes having a fuss made over him, especially when it is made by his friends and neighbors, who have known him so well and for such a long time. But he had a part to play and he played it with grace and charm, with a touch of the grand seigneur and with a wise Puckish abstraction.

For Sibelius is a man's man, and like a man, he takes the art of musical composition with intense seriousness, but without egotism or self-delusion. It is the business which he, personally, happens to be concerned with, and he sees no more matter in it to cause excessive hero-worshipping than is to be found in the work of any other professional man who has made the world stop for a moment and listen.

And speaking of Sibelius and Finland, how many know that Finland is and has been for many years, a highly civilized country. In 1900 literacy was 1.2 percent and today it is non-existent, a claim which no other country in the world can make. Sociologists rank Finland as the most progressive country in Europe today in schools, government, hospitals, the care of the poor and aged. It was the first to introduce woman suffrage. The new school of architecture got its start in Finland, and the achievements of Saarinen, Sonck, Lindgren, and Siren are carefully studied the world over.

A broadcast over the NBC system Tuesday which brought pride to many local music lovers was given by Ada Zeller, the charming and gifted New York pianist-composer, who through summer visits in Camden and Rockland has completely won all who have come in contact with her. Miss Zeller played numbers by Bach, Brahms, Chopin, and "Exaltation" one of her own compositions. Her program was beautifully given.

Joseph Hofmann will be the soloist at the next concert of the Boston Morning Musicales on the ballroom of the Statler Hotel on Wednesday, Jan. 15.

Appearing in Concerto for Two Pianos in C minor, Bach, in a recent People's Symphony Orchestra program in Boston, were Jeanne Behrend and Alexander Kelterber. Miss Behrend, it will be recalled, was heard in piano solos in a Curtis concert in Camden a few years ago, giving much pleasure by her exquisite artistry.

Cornelia Otis Skinner comes to the Schubert on Jan. 20 with her new monodrama "Mansion on the Hudson," the engagement for one week only. The new play is in six scenes, covering a span of 54 years in American social and economic annals. Let's hope that Miss Skinner comes to Camden the coming summer in the very same presentation.

In response to an inquiry, The "Messiah" is universally regarded as Handel's greatest work in this field. Typical of the composer's genius, the work was completed in 24 days. In 1741 Handel was invited by the Duke of Devonshire to visit Ireland and in Dublin, on April 13, 1742, he first produced the "Messiah" for the benefit of a charity organization. Its success was immediate and in March, 1743, the work was presented triumphantly in London. The audience was so struck by the Hallelujah Chorus that one and all, headed by the King, rose to their feet and remained standing, a custom that has prevailed ever since.

THIS WORLD

[For The Courier-Gazette]
This world is God's own handiwork.
That He called "good," as 'twas by stages wrought.
A modest word to tell of glory and of grace.
From darkness and a great disorder brought:
"Twere hard to picture Heaven,
With features of greater worth,
Than those that charm the senses,
Of inhabitants of earth:

How could a grander sight e'er be,
Than that which forms ear-h's canopy?
Could mountains more majestic rear,
Than those that show such grandeur here?
It seems the varied soils do bear,
A verdure quite beyond compare;
What rivers, sparkling in their race,
Now rush to meet the mighty sea!
Words, e'er, are all inadequate,
For praising scenes that so elate!

When God gave light to human eyes,
That they might all the wondrous beauties see,
He doubtless meant that we should love the life bestowed,
And cling to it, from birth, tenaciously;
'Twere hard to picture Heaven,
With a setting more sublime
Than the gracious varyings,
That make up the Stage of Time!

HOLLYWOOD STAR-LITES

By Chuck Cochard

Hollywood, Calif.—Old man resolution has more assistants in Hollywood than any community of similar size in the world.

A canvass of a few of filmdom's most popular players reveals this information:

Warner Baxter . . . Resolved not to play in another picture with C. R. M. from other studios because they always steal my scenes. In other words, Comedy Relief Man Jack Oakie is giving me a run-for-my-rols in "King of Burlesque."

Jack Oakie . . . Resolved not to play in another picture with L. M. W. M. . . . meaning in this instance, Warner Baxter, in "King of Burlesque" and, remember, the last time I played for 20th Century the leading-man-with-mustache, was Clarke Gable in "Call of the Wild."

Janet Gaynor . . . Resolved to take that trip around the world that has been in my mind and on paper for the past five years; and, if I keep adding to the places I want to see—off the beaten track—looks like it would take another five years to cover all of them!

John Boles . . . Resolved that I'll work in pictures during 1936 where I can get a regular hair cut every two weeks! (Boles has worked on period pictures for so many months the past year that the barbers have seen him seldom.)

Shirley Temple . . . So far as she's concerned New Years Day is just another occasion for celebration, but it will include no resolutions. The 20th Century-Fox baby star considered the custom of resolution-making with characteristic logic.

"If you want to do something," she said, "or if you want to stop doing something, why do you have to wait until New Years Day? Why isn't any old day good enough?"

Victor McLaglen . . . adventurer and delineator of hard-boiled he-men, remained true to character in scoring the theory "Nerts to that," he exclaimed. "When I make 'em I keep 'em—and I keep 'em to myself."

Slim Sumnerville . . . the angular comedy star who is a devoted reader of everything that Mark Twain ever wrote, paraphrased his favorite author: "Reports of my resolutions are greatly exaggerated," he said. "In all my life have never broken a resolution. Call it will power, if you like. I just never make any resolutions."

Until next week I remain your Hollywood correspondent who resolves to serve you better during the coming year with the latest news and gossip from the film capital. That's all for today. See you next week. Cut.

BIG YEAR AHEAD

Salada Tea Company Expects To Exceed All Previous Records

"Substantial improvement in business in 1935 and every indication of a far better year in 1936" was the keynote of the Salada Tea Sales Convention held in the spacious and luxurious clubroom of the Salada Tea Building in Boston Dec. 27.

So encouraging were the results of the past year and so bright were the forecasts for 1936 that it was decided to continue the extensive newspaper advertising which has been the backbone of the company's sales policy since its organization in 1892. Each year, through good times and bad, Salada Tea newspaper advertising has increased both in number of advertisements and number of papers used. In fact about 35 new papers have been added to the list for next year so that a total of well over 700 newspapers are now scheduled to carry Salada Tea advertising in 1936.

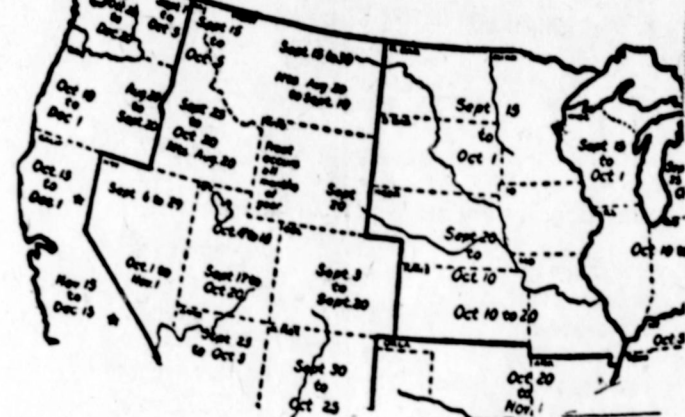

In New England alone, Salada Tea advertisements appeared in 270,659,180 copies of newspapers published during 1935. Taking the country as a whole, 1,550,948,780 advertisements appeared for Salada Tea during the past year. Plans for next year include a 20% increase in the number of advertisements which would boost the total of Salada Tea advertisements up to almost two billion for 1936.

For the past 44 years, newspaper advertising has been used extensively and almost exclusively because it has been found to be the most effective form of advertising and selling Salada Tea. With all this advertising support, is it any wonder that Salada Tea is "The Largest Selling Package Tea in North America?"

"SEE-SAW" WINTER DUE FOR U.S.

Prepare For Cold-Warm-Frigid Weather, Puzzled Experts Warn

IN the midst of the world's current legal confusion, there stands one law that judges, juries and attorneys have been 100 per cent powerless to upset. No law has been found in it, although it has been studied by millions of schemers. Health, horse racing, statesmanship and ditch digging come equally under its strict regulation. It works just as well up among the clouds as it does on the earth. In fact, the Weather Bureau is one of the few human agencies that seems to know best how to take advantage of it.

In so doing, said Weather Bureau simply goes on the theory that what goes up must come down. For it is this law—the Law of Averages—that is the foundation of modern long-distance weather forecasting. And if the Law of Averages, which so far has never failed to work, bears out present calculations of the country's leading weather experts, the coming Winter is about to treat the United States to one of its most trying programs.

There are "old-fashioned" Winters and there are mild Winters. But there is an in-between variety, the most destructive kind known in so-called temperate climates. It is the "see-saw" Winter—first freezing and then warm. This is the prospect that lies before us, the weather specialists say, for the next three months.

In making this prediction, the specialists explain that the weather has a way of balancing its budget of cold, heat and humidity. It does this by a series of swings toward unseasonable warmth or unusual cold, each period extending over several years. When one of these swings commences, however, there is always a marked in-between year when the weather "see-saws" between hot and cold.

Opening up the weather man's book of averages, it is found that up to two years ago, mild Winters occurred, with one "see-saw" at the beginning of the series, over eight successive years. These called for an equal number of counterbalancing, and the first one came in 1933. Last Winter's cold, the records show, was again quite as severe over the country as a whole as it was in 1933, although the absence of heavy snowfalls made the low temperatures less apparent to Mr. and Mrs. Citizen. Now the "see-saw" year is not only due to occur, but its imminence is attested by several meteorological signs.

Cold coming down from the north and starting its customary drifts to east or west as it crosses the border into the United States. Ordinarily these cold waves continue their course and are gradually tempered by the warmer country over which they pass. The result is that at their extreme limits their effects are much less severe. This year, the drifts of cold air start on their way but proceed only a short distance when a wave of warmth rushes up from the south. This terminates the cold spell abruptly. The warmth then lingers in the path of the next cold weather, which in turn is succeeded by another warm invasion.

Winters such as these may be dependent upon to wreak more havoc than any other sort. Their most serious inroads are in the field of public health.

Second only to its effect upon health, such a Winter disrupts business, industry and agriculture. Seasonal lines of goods move slowly, and the commercial picture is further distorted by the difficulties of transportation.

Of all the members of the transportation family, the automobile is the worst sufferer. Now, with a see-saw Winter in prospect, leaders in the automobile industry foresee grave trouble for the motorist unless some concerted action can be taken. To this end, a national campaign is under way to assure the use of only the most permanent type of anti-freeze. A solution that boils away when a warm wave comes leaves the car owner helpless when a frigid blast follows. Only some basic chemical combination such as prestone can free the motorist from the necessity of frequent checks to determine the amount of anti-freeze in his radiator, and equally frequent refills. Without such a precaution, it is pointed out, this year's annual freeze-up toll may reach record proportions.

Already, the Winter see-saw is at work. Shifts of as many as 35 degrees in twenty-four hours are being reported from a dozen widely separated sections. As the normal cold intensifies, these shifts will become more extreme, weather specialists warn. The all-time record to date for a twenty-four hour temperature shift is that reported by the last Byrd Antarctic Expedition—from 16 above to 65 degrees below. This record is also of special interest to car owners in that the expedition's automotive equipment, protected by permanent anti-freeze, was never once threatened, although the thermometer fell to 80 degrees below zero.

GUARDIANS OF OUR COAST

What our lightkeepers and coast guardmen are doing to protect coastwise shipping by day and by night. The day's news from many lonely outposts along Maine's waterfront.

We left behind the painted buoy. That tows at the harbor-mouth. And maddly danced our hearts with joy. As fast we fled to the South. How fresh was every sight and sound. On open main or winding shore! We knew the merry world was round. And we might sail for evermore.

Portland Head

Arthur Harlow was guest Sunday of Mr. Sterling. Winter sports are in full swing. The pond at Fort Williams attracts boys and girls these cold days. Blow high, blow low, on with skates and away they go!

F. O. Hilt, A. Hathorn, Arthur Harlow and George Cloudman were recent callers at Cape Elizabeth Light. Good Times postponed the New Years party to be held at the home of Mrs. Adora Hilt on account of Mrs. Grace Dow who is ill at her home on Stevens avenue, Portland. Mrs. Dow was promoter of the club and the members wish her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. R. T. Sterling was with Mrs. Dow all day Monday, joined by Mrs. F. O. Hilt and Mrs. Lucy Robinson in the afternoon.

Looking inshore Tuesday morning our eyes beheld a dense black smoke with all indications of an ugly fire. A general alarm sounded and when our evening papers arrived we got the story: At Cities Service dock, South Portland, oil tanker Gov. Douglas exploded and Capt. Charles H. Campbell of Arrowsic was missing and believed dead. The Gov. Douglas was once owned by Capt. Archibald of Thomaston while carrying mail between that town and Monhegan.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Sterling entertained New Years Day Mrs. Webber and son of Danvers, Mass., and Misses Elizabeth Sterling and Marion Sterling of Peaks Island.

Doubling Point Range

Christmas is over and we are embarking on the New Year which we hope may be happy and prosperous for all our good friends.

Keeper and Mrs. Nye spent Christmas Day alone here on the Station, but were remembered generously with presents and cards, having received 67 cheery holiday greetings. Keeper Nye was the recipient of 12 attractive and useful gifts and Mrs. Nye went him one better by receiving 13. Appreciation is extended our friends for their kind thoughtfulness.

The Sea Coast Missionary Society, which does much good work along the rocky coast, gave us a place on their list and we are indeed grateful for their services and express earnest wishes for a successful year.

The mercury here Sunday morning registered 2 below zero. There is a considerable amount of running ice in the Kennebec River at the present time.

A large oil tanker passed in Dec. 29 and out again the following morning. Its name is unknown, as it was too dark to read at the time of its passage. Several other tankers have been plying the waters hereabouts lately.

Miss Evelyn Steen of Arrowsic, a friend and neighbor, was married Dec. 28 to Perley Ater of Ohio, now employed as stationary engineer at the Bath Iron Works.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pinkham and sons Roger and Gordon of Bath were visitors Sunday at the station.

May the coming days of 1936 bear good fortune to all.

Heron Neck

The season's greetings to The Courier-Gazette staff and also to the light keepers and their families. A bright and prosperous New Year to you all!

Mrs. Andrew Bennett was recent overnight guest of Mrs. Lantry Smith of Vinalhaven.

Much appreciation is expressed to Capt. Wincapaw and sponsors of the fine Christmas package of latest edition containing newspapers, cigarettes, coffee and doughnuts, etc., which dropped to us from the Santa Claus airplane on Christmas morning. It was greatly enjoyed and we thank you.

Clarence Bennett and Philip Bennett have their lobster traps out, but the weather prevents making regular hauls.

We thank the Maine Seacoast Missionary Society for the nice Christmas package it so thoughtfully sent to the Light. Best wishes in its work for another year. Joyce Bennett has employment at McKinley.

Pond Island

Hello everyone! We had a very nice Christmas, even though we two were alone. Our Christmas dinner was fine and several nice gifts were received.

Appreciation is expressed to the "Flying Santa Claus," Capt. Wincapaw, for the Christmas bundle which he dropped from the sky. He flew very low—almost even with the tower. It is exciting pleasure for lonely ones to watch him.

We also thank the "sea-going Santa Claus," Rev. O. J. Guphill of the Maine Seacoast Missionary for the Christmas package. They always bring cheer to the solitary Keepers and other families along the sea coast.

Mrs. Pickett joins me in wishing all a very happy and prosperous New Year.

Ram Island

Greetings to all, and a joyous New Year to Capt. W. H. Wincapaw in particular, to whom we send our thanks for the bountiful Christmas coffee, cookies, doughnuts and coffee, cookies, doughnuts and cigarettes.

Thomas McPhee was a recent caller at the Light. Amos Loud, Mary Loud, Mabel Robinson and Millard Robinson have been in Boothbay recently.

Dr. Gregory was called to the Light recently to attend Keeper Robinson who has been very ill, but is now gaining slowly.

Petit Manan

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Fletcher gave a turkey dinner Christmas Day and had as guests Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Cheney, Carlton Cheney, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Lockhart, Miss Constance Fletcher and Dorothy Fletcher. A big shooting match was held before the feast with Carlton Cheney winning first prize and W. L. Lockhart, second.

Our flying Santa Claus, Capt. William Wincapaw, visited us Christmas Day and left us a package containing cigarettes, papers, sweets, etc. It landed within a foot of the target which the men had been using. We thank Capt. Wincapaw and his associates for their remembrance of us and wish them success and prosperity for the coming year.

Mrs. Hoyt Cheney and son Carlton have returned to Lubec after spending the holidays here with Mr. Cheney. Katherine Freeman and Mazie Freeman have returned to Jonesboro to resume their studies following a holiday visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Freeman.

Mrs. Roscoe Fletcher is in Eastport to be with her father who is seriously ill. She was accompanied as far as Pembroke by her daughters Constance and Dorothy.

Baker Island

Happy New Year to all our friends along the coast.

Miss Lucille Faulkingham is spending the holidays with her parents, Keeper and Mrs. Faulkingham.

We hope that Keeper and Mrs. Lockhart like their new station.

Our sincere thanks to Capt. Wincapaw for the lovely Christmas package which he dropped at this station on Christmas Day.

Kenneth Sawyer passed the Yuletide vacation with us and his company was highly enjoyed.

Millard Gray has returned to Jonesport, after spending several months with Keeper Faulkingham and family.

We express appreciation to the Maine Seacoast Missionary Society for the nice holiday package which they sent to us.

Although there was no snow for Christmas we enjoyed the festivities and received a grand array of presents.

Saluting '36 in Verse

Mrs. E. W. Osgood of Popham Beach forwards to this department, with kind permission to reprint, this seasonal poem from the pen of Rev. William Wood:

Good-by, Old Year, God's clock has struck. And you are doomed to go. You promised better than you wrought. And left a trail of woe. Bustin' it all and through it all. We're very glad to say The Lord has kindly borne us up— And will, each new-born day: And in the year about to be, What will may come and go: His goodness will be uniform. Whatever winds may blow. And so, we welcome '36 With hope and boundless cheer— And may it be to one and all, A soul-refreshing year!

EXPRESS MONEY ORDERS

Now Being Handled By Western Union For Public Convenience

In order to provide Rockland residents with additional facilities for purchasing money orders which may be mailed or sent by other methods slower than the telegraph, the local Western Union office began the sale Jan. 1st of American Express money orders and checks, it was announced by B. A. Gardner, local manager of the telegraph company. Simultaneously, Western Union offices in all parts of the United States, where there is a demand for this service, will inaugurate the sale of American Express money orders.

The sale of American Express money orders will in no way conflict with the Western Union money and gift order services through which over $200,000,000 is annually transferred at telegraphic speed, and comprises about 90 percent of the nation's telegraphic money orders.

Offices of the American Express Company will act as branches of Western Union in the sale of telegrams, cablegrams and telegraphic money orders, as a part of the agreement which has been reached between the two companies.
